

movement is now said to be on foot to build another large and handsome hotel in New-Brighton for the accommodation of summer visitors.

Bon Butler's attack on mutton chop whiskers is causing much excitement throughout the country.

The shaggy hanger of having fomented the nastiness relative to the alleged cannibalism of the Greeks party below to the New-York Times, which completely lost its head in the pleasure it found in wallowing in an unhealthy mess.—Boston Gazette.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

Mille Almee is expected to arrive here on Wednesday on board the St. Laurent. On December 15 she will appear at the Fifth Avenue Theatre for the first time in English drama.

Mr. Jose Williams has been engaged as conductor of the orchestra and stage manager at Koster and Bial's, Miss Louise Lester and others "in evening dress," will, beginning with next Sunday, perform selections from "Lucia." To-night there will be a concert by the Venetian troubadours and selections from the opera "Blame" in the days of Charles II.

"The Bohemian Girl" and "The Chimes of Normandy," will divide this week at the Bijou Opera House, which will be the last of Koster & Donnelly's season of English opera, which has, at least, been an interesting experiment.

There will be the usual Sunday evening concert on the roof of the Casino this evening.

The sale of seats for "Called Back," to be presented on September 1, will begin at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Thursday morning of this week.

The manager of Mimie Muddern says that he has tendered $12,000 by a prominent New-York manufacturer who does not name for the manuscript of "Mimie." Miss Muddern will appear again at the New-York Theatre on October 22, a contract having been signed for four weeks.

A sheet of paper with gorgeous enrichment in the upper left-hand corner brings the information that Mr. Gandy, who will arrive to-day on the Alaska will in Paris soon sing of Victor Hugo with her description of America has the pose: "Do you not see if you see my name and the arrival on the next steamer?"

Mr. and Mrs. McKee Barron will open the Third Avenue Theatre to-morrow evening with "45." The next play will be "M. Edouard." In the course of the season C. H. H. will appear in "The Merchant of Venice."

The musical program of musicians published in the Montgomery Advertiser of Leipsic contains a record of the recent of Miss Farnell, once a celebrated singer in America, at the age of 105 years.

The regular season at the Peepo's Theatre will be opened to-morrow evening with a performance of "The Wreath."

The audience at the Faust at St. Louis during the week have been convulsed by the wild fun of "A Bas Bouffé." In construction the pieces of the ordinary variety order, but there is a great fund of broad humor, and coarse satire in the working out of the two ideas on which it is based, the point of view of the dramatic business, and the infatuation of all manner of seafarers.

In the nature of these ideas to carry out the plot, the author has been compelled to be a little too explicit, and the preliminary infatuation of the hero in "Le Peepo" to hold any more legs, and directors or stockholders, in particular.

OBITUARY.

EDWIN M. LEWIS.

By TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—Edwin M. Lewis, president of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, and receiver of the Reading Road, died yesterday. He is said upon the best authority that there were no circumstances that would induce him to expose himself to the risk of his life. He was a member of the Farmers' Committee, and the vice-president of that institution.

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

PETERSBURG, Va., Aug. 23.—Dr. T. Stanley Breckwell, one of the oldest physicians in this state, died last night after a protracted illness. He was born in Linton, N. C., on May 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

OBITUARY.

EDWIN M. LEWIS.

By TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—Edwin M. Lewis, president of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, and receiver of the Reading Road, died yesterday. He is said upon the best authority that there were no circumstances that would induce him to expose himself to the risk of his life. He was a member of the Farmers' Committee, and the vice-president of that institution.

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. A. CRANE.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."

DR. T. STANLEY BRECKWELL.

Uvalde, Texas, died yesterday at his home, No. 671, Uvalde, Texas, president of Parsons, of which he was the first stock director. He was born in Fairfield, N. J., on April 18, 1812, and was reared in that city in the dingy times of slavery. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and graduated in 1837 to practice as a physician. He was a member of the medical faculty of the University of North Carolina, and the impounder of Frank Daniels or "Old Spore."